Priebus Statement on Obama's Upcoming Wis. Visit

If President Obama was speaking at 'Unemployment Fest' instead of 'Laborfest' this upcoming Monday in Wisconsin, the crowd would be bigger, and not as happy. This trip marks Obama's third visit to the state over the past few months. The fact that Obama is wearing out tracks in Wisconsin shows how desperate the Democrats really are about their chances this November, and for good reason.

Poll: Americans Trust GOP on Key Issues

Americans believe Republicans in Congress would do a better job of dealing with major election issues, according to a USA Today/Gallup poll released Wednesday. When asked if Republicans or Democrats would do a better job of dealing with terrorism, immigration, federal spending, and others issues, those polled agreed Republicans would do a better job with all issues except the environment. Over the past two years, Democrats in Congress have let our nation down and now it is time for a GOP comeback!

"Enthusiasm Gap" Could Indicate GOP Nov. Turnout Advantage

Thus far this primary season, the GOP has turned out 3 million more voters than the Democrats.

While historically it is common for the party not holding the White House to make gains in Congress during non-presidential election years, the widening "enthusiasm gap" between the right and the left should have Democrats worried. Make sure you are registered to vote this

America back on track and make Wisconsin red again!

A "Bellwether" Coming Undone

The New York Times became the latest media outlet to turn its sights on Russ Feingold's increasingly desperate re-election campaign, and the picture it found wasn't pretty. The front-page article details how unaffected Feingold has become when his constituents express frustration with the economy, how he becomes visibly angered when his constituents address his record, and how out-of-touch he has become since entering politics more than 28 years ago.

RPW Chairman Priebus Statement on HQ Vandalism

Early last Saturday morning, the Republican campaign office in Cudahy was vandalized by four young men. Such actions should not be tolerated from either side of the political aisle. One broken window is nothing compared to the mess Democrats made over the last few years, and this incident isn't going to stop us or scare us from working to make a much-needed change in the direction of our government.

Julie Peddles Lassa Lies on Social Security

Get ready to hold your nose, Wisconsin. Julie Lassa's campaign has begun polluting the airwaves with its first attack ad that continues to push the flat-out lie that Sean Duffy wants to privatize Social Security. Julie Lassa has made it clear that she will say and do anything, including blatantly flip-flopping in her first TV ad, to win this race.

Priebus Statement on Obama, Feingold and Iraq

If Feingold had his way, we would not be where we are today. Senator Feingold has consistently opposed our efforts in Iraq, from voting against critical funding to opposing and voting against the surge strategy that ultimately turned the tide. Ron Johnson, on the other hand, represents a vision much more in line with what Wisconsin really wants: strong foreign policy and 100% support for our troops.

GOP Exec Director Jefferson Statement on DPW Attacks

The Democrats' relentless lie-and-smear campaign against Ron Johnson rolled ahead with Mike Tate hosting a conference call to lecture Ron Johnson on his business practices. It should come as no surprise that Russ Feingold is instructing his minions at the Democratic Party to engage in these kinds of negative attacks against Johnson and his business because Feingold knows that once this race becomes a referendum on his record in Washington, he's toast.

Ron Kind: Do as I Say, Not as I Did

Earlier this week, 14-year incumbent Congressman Ron Kind attacked Dan Kapanke and his charity. What Kind failed to mention is that when he first ran for Congress, he raised hundreds of thousands from special interests and lobbyists, then cut himself a similar check. A year later, the FEC even had to correct his under-reporting of his campaign's obligations. Before Kind continues to attack Kapanke, he needs to come clean that his own record with the FEC is far from spotless.

Another Stimulus Failure

According to Joe Biden, the Obama administration "hit the accelerator" on home weatherization as part of the stimulus bill. However, the weatherization program is among the most dysfunctional spending projects in the already incredibly dysfunctional bill. Since the program began, it has experienced spending delays, inefficiencies, and mismanagement. So, not only is the federal government clearly overstepping its constitutional duties, but it is also wasting billions of taxpayer dollars in the process.
