

WISGOP Daily Update

--Milwaukee County Executive and Republican candidate for governor Scott Walker announced a new plan that would save Wisconsin taxpayers up to $5.4 million by ending the state subsidy for free phones for welfare recipients. Walker's proposal still enables low-income Wisconsin residents to apply for the federal government program that supplies discounted phones, but the state will no longer foot the bill to make the phones completely free. --The Republican National Committee (RNC) launched a new website today that highlights President Obama's mismanagement of the economy, reckless growth of government, and failure to deliver results for the American people. You have the opportunity to turn our economy, our government and our country around by electing Republicans and restoring your voice in Washington. It's up to you to save your country. Are you ready? Because "November Starts Now." Visit the WISGOP Blog to learn more about the RNC's site.

--Wisconsin Congressman Paul Ryan appeared on MSNBC's Hardball with Chris Matthews on Monday. During the interview, Rep. Ryan explains to Matthews how tax hikes impact the budget, as well as the economy. Watch the video on the WISGOP Blog.
